What would be the best way to find out more? Who could we ask? How might we go about asking them?

What is this information telling us?

How does this connect to what you already know? How do we know if the information is reliable or not?

How can we check this?

Where has this information come from?

How is this making you feel?

What skills will we need to use?

This makes me wonder about...

I think we could/ should... How about we ask...

Maybe we could search for...

What patterns are you seeing?

What does this mean?

How has our thinking been extended from what we already knew?

What questions arise for you?

What are you noticing?

What questions have we answered? What next?

What connections can we draw?

How is this making a difference to us?

How can we use what we are learning?
